

Luiz Carlos Bresser-Pereira

(June 2016)

Luiz Carlos Bresser-Pereira is emeritus professor of Getulio Vargas Foundation, where he teaches and researches since 1959. His PhD and Livre Docência in economics are by the University of São Paulo. He is doctor honoris causa by the University of Buenos Aires, received the James Street Scholar 2012 from the Association for Evolutionary Economics – AFEE. He was finance minister (1987) and minister of federal administration (1995-98) of Brazil. Among his books in English: The Theory of Inertial Inflation (1987), Democracy and Public Management Reform (2004, with Adam Przeworski and José María Maravall), Globalization and Competition (2010), Developmental Macroeconomics (2014, with José Luis Oreiro and Nelson Marconi), The Political Construction of Brazil (2016). Among his papers: "Economic reforms and cycles of state intervention" (1993), "The Dutch disease and its neutralization: a Ricardian Approach" (2008), "The two methods and the hard core of economics" (2009), "The global financial crisis, neoclassical economics, and the neoliberal years of capitalism" (2010), "The value of the exchange rate and the Dutch disease" (2013), "Inequality and the phases of capitalism" (2014). His current research is on new developmentalism, developmental macroeconomics, political economy, and on the interpretation of Brazil.